mailFactory Validation: A New Era of Document Integrity

Kern mail*Factory* Validation utilizes cameras to scan the input document stream and/or the output mail stream to ensure that expected documents are seen at the input and/or output of the inserting system. This module will most benefit mail producers whose requirements may include the extraordinary burden of proof demonstrating matching functionality redundant to that contained in the core Kern inserting technology. The software will match the documents to a file and divert documents that are out of sequence. Also, mail*Factory* Validation, when enhanced by a divert bin after the camera, can be used to provide input and output validation on non-Kern inserters and integration into the Kern mail*Factory*.

Kern's mail*Factory* Validation was designed for absolute integrity in verifying that the right contents are in the right envelope. When your mail center is operating at high speeds, accuracy is paramount. In transactional mail you cannot send the wrong letter to the wrong person, and Kern's mail*Factory* Validation ensures that this does not happen.
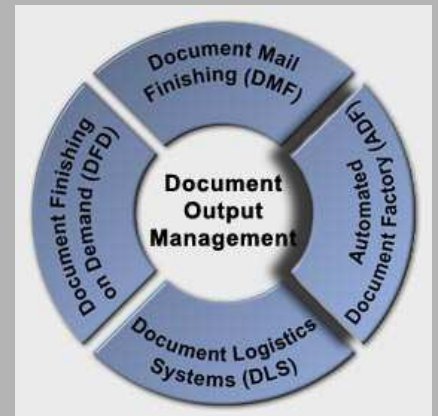

Operating Modes:

mailFactory Validation supports three different operation modes:
- Piloting - Processing according to Control file
- Tracking - Creation of a Tracking file during the process
- No Supervision - No mail-piece monitoring
